

BRECKENRIDGE NEWS LEITCHFIELD.

Joe Mulholland is in town spreading his goods all around. Come again, Joe, with another big show.

Dr. Hadley's house is about completed, and the "Nicholson" pavement from the courthouse to the depot is under way.

Judge McClure and wife have gone to visit her parents and relatives in Hardin.

Mr. G. A. Culhage, Jr., thinks turn about is fair play. If his girl goes to Breckenridge for a sweetheart, so will he.

Madam Rumer says Mr. Jesse Greenell is struck with Haidin. How is that, Ed?

Dr. Strickler paid a flying visit to his home and friends last week.

Rev. Mr. Crow, of the Christian church, preached a series of sermons here last week, resulting in ten additions to the church.

Look here, you sardine! What is that you say about Mr. Jesse Lewis peeping over the counter at you? No more of that. He has been given to me, and you must "cheese your racket."

Mr. and Mrs. Wood Wortham look very happy in their new home. They are preparing to visit their parents on Rock Lake the last of next week. Her sister, Miss Nellie Dean, expects to return with her to remain until after Christmas, perhaps longer—just as her Christmas fellow says to that.

Miss Katie Montgomery, sister of Senator A. B. Montgomery, of Elizabethtown, who has been visiting Mr. Foster Heyser, returned home on last Sunday evening's train, much to the sorrow of her many warm friends. She is an earnest and elegant Christian, and in all her walks exerts a powerful influence over young and old.

Owing to the rain, Messrs. C. and B. Kennedy made the anticipated visit to see Miss Lewis and Mr. C. in Breckenridge. "We know not what to-morrow brings, strange fluctuation of all human things."

Some of our boys are turning their attention in the direction of Hardin. Our friend, Mr. O. C. Yates, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, posted himself off to Stephentown to spend the day. Mr. O. C. is about right. "Never mind the weather in a case of this kind." Christmas times are coming, Oscar, and you will have to walk straight.

Last Monday, Judge McClure was called on to marry a couple, "residents" of the poor house, aged respectively 60 and 80. The old woman was blind in one eye, and her husband being weak in the "joints" had to be wheeled during the ceremony. Not much to be wondered at when this was to be his second wife. They were engaged two long months. The woman had to lead the man. Quite a consolation, however. If you can't support a wife, marry a woman that can support you. Vale.

LONG LICK.

Plenty of rain during the past few days. Mr. Acie H. says Miss Julie says she has not forgotten those happy hours you and she spent under the green locust shade. She says they were the happiest hours of her life.

Miss B. M. says "J. M." would be nice to work in the corners of a pillow-slip. You bet they would.

Messrs. Anthony Coons and Green Dismick, of Daviess county, were in our midst visiting friends. Come again.

Mr. Tom Higgins, Jack and Acie H. and Nace Storms, from Grayson Springs, were visiting friends in the community. Come again, all of you.

Mr. Wm. Harrell, of the vicinity of Morton's Mill, passed through here en route to Grayson county.

Mr. Tommie Hill has left the neighborhood and gone to his home in Grayson county. We miss you, Tom; you must come to see us again.

Messrs. E. and J. Marriott and Miss Julia Elder, of Hardin county, were visiting in the neighborhood.

MARRIED.—Mr. George Mattingly to Miss Laura Brown, and Mr. George Sills to Miss Marie Lewis. I wish them much joy and a happy life.

Mr. N. W. says that Miss Mollie G. is his girl. You say you will. Mr. N. and Miss Mollie mean business, you bet.

BOYS.—To the wife of Mr. George Mattingly, a son.

Mr. James Green is very low with typhoid fever, and it is thought that he will not recover.

MCDANIEL'S.

There is a good deal of sickness in our community at present. Mr. Edward Cannon's wife is very low. Mr. Fred Frank has been suffering terribly with his lungs. John Henninger is quite ill, with but small chance for ultimate recovery.

Mr. Editor, we democrats had a march here on the day of the election, but since that time we don't feel like marching. The republicans had their jubilation the Friday night following.

The vote of this precinct was as follows: For president—Hancock, 117; Garfield, 23; Weaver, 17. For congress—Knot, 117; Green, 16. The republican candidate for congress did not receive a vote; his name was not even placed on the pollbook, and every republican except three in the precinct signed the pollbook.

Mr. W. F. Cannon has moved to his new house in "the bend." He gave a big hop the day before he moved. He has got the granddaddy of all the houses.

Mr. Flos Rhodes has brought her home. Tom looks like he needs a doctor. He says he has had the toothache for about two weeks.

Mr. Flos, we don't like to give up our old friend. We like John.

Mr. Bobby S. is going up the Clear Spring of Calmes Creek fishing. It seems that he is fond of schoolmarms—one, at any rate. Bobby loves to talk about marrying but don't marry. Come, Bobby, you know what we have promised you if you don't marry by Christmas.

Well, Mr. Editor, I suppose that Garfield is elected president. Hurrah for the Barrenness News, anyhow! Tom.

A WEDDING FEAST OF DEATH.
A table spread with delicacies obtained by a murder.

LOUISA COURT HOUSE, Va., Nov. 5.—A. Albert Mitchell (colored) was hanged here today for the murder of Charles K. Walton (white) in March 1879. The execution took place in the jail yard in presence of the court officers and a few favored spectators, including representatives of the press. Everything went well and quietly conducted. There was only a small gathering outside of the jail enclosure. The body of the executioner having kept away the large gathering which has been usual on such occasions in past years.

Previous to and after his sentence the prisoner made a clean breast of the tragic affair, giving a detailed statement of the manner in which the deed was done. This statement he repeated this morning in the presence of a number of witnesses, confessing that he was the only person connected with the crime, and that he went to Walton's store fully determined to murder and rob him. He had always been treated kindly by Walton. At times when he was out late at night Walton allowed him to sleep on the floor in his room. On the night of the murder he went to the store and was admitted by Walton, who had not yet gone to bed. He sat down near the fire, and Walton lay on the side of the bed and fell into a doze. Mitchell then struck him over the head twice with a piece of iron from a place, after which he went into the store and robbed the money drawer. While doing this he heard Walton call him in a faint voice, but paid no heed to the call. After he had robbed the drawer he went back into the room, and finding that Walton was not dead, he struck him again, and then proceeded deliberately to set the place on fire, so as to create the impression that Walton came to his death by being burned up in his house. When the fire had gotten well under way he went home and went to bed, as he said, but he went to sleep and slept soundly the remainder of the night.

Mr. Chas. K. Walton, for whose murder Mitchell was hanged, kept a general country store at Yanceyville, in Louisa county. On the night of the murder, when his store was discovered to be on fire, the neighbors hastened to the scene, but, being aware that powder was kept on the premises, none dared venture near enough to render any assistance. After the explosion of the powder and the destruction of the building, a search among the ruins resulted in the discovery of Walton's remains. He might have escaped had he been alive and conscious when the fire broke out, and this connected with the fact that some silver money and gold pieces which he was known to have carried in his pocket were missing, was convincing evidence that he had been robbed and murdered, and the building fired to cover up the foul deed. Besides this, there were other suspicious circumstances which tended strongly to confirm the theory of crime.

The first incriminating evidence was brought to light while the neighbors were engaged in a further search among the ruins. A negro named William Talley, who was assisting, produced a ring which was known to have been worn by Mr. Walton, saying he had found it in the ashes. As it was later by Mr. Walton's cook, Mitchell, Talley, and the woman were indicted and held for trial. From confessions and other testimony it was proved that Mitchell was the principal participant in the shocking deed, and upon his trial the guilt was conclusively fixed upon him.

It appeared that Mitchell had been engaged to a dusky belle of Louisa county, and had promised to marry her on the 10th of March. He did not have enough money to give the wedding supper, and determined to get the articles from Walton's store. As soon as he had killed the storekeeper he took a salt sack and filled it with articles carefully selected from the stock, which was like the average country store stock. He took a plentiful supply of horse shoes, crackers, pickles, molasses candy, cheese, and Bologna sausage. After breaking into the money drawer, he stowed his booty over the floor and fired the building. The next day he got a marriage license, and was married. The wedding banquet took place at night, and the colored guests revelled in the good things. It was the banquet of death to the happy bridegroom, as the detectives gained convincing proofs from the wrecked pickle jars and cans bearing Walton's mark.

After Mitchell's conviction his career was a somewhat remarkable one. He was first sentenced to be hanged in January last. His case was taken to the supreme court of appeals to obtain a new trial, and while it was there Mitchell made his escape from jail, in company with another prisoner. The new trial was refused, and some months afterward Mitchell was recaptured on the Chesapeake. He had railroaded after he had jumped from a freight train in the Blue Ridge tunnel, in doing which he fell under the cars, and had one of his legs cut off. After his recapture he made another and unsuccessful attempt to escape. He was resented in September last.

CUSTER.

Business is quite lively here at present. We are having bad weather now. It has been raining for two or three days.

Mr. Meyer has just arrived home with a large stock of goods. He expects to do a good business.

Miss Jennie Meyer has returned home from a visit to relatives in Louisville. We are glad you are back, Miss Jennie, for J. H. is sure to be glad to see you.

You will have to excuse J. R. Haire for not giving a better description of himself when last you heard from him, for he was excited then, and will try and do better next time.

Miss Dixie Bushman has been very sick, but I am glad to say she is getting better.

Dr. H. H. Haire, infant daughter of Mr. George Haire, aged 6 years.

Mr. Frank and Miss Ada Richardson have gone on a visit to some relatives near Big Spring.

I will close now, as I have been disappointed today.
